

Marie Clark, Kueher paid a visit to the house.

"But Frances never done that—no, sir, she's a good girl," protested Marie, who declares she has known "Frances" for three years and has lived in "her" flat for more than a fortnight at a time, but "never knew until the cops told me that she was a man."

Introduced to "Frances Carrick" three years ago by Helen Williams, inmate of a disorderly house, then at 2180 North Clark street, the two struck up a close friendship.

"About six months ago," the Clark woman said, "I got the dope that she had a flat to rent. I beat it to my folks in Detroit. I tried to get the habit off, all by myself. I had to tell the folks, for I had only two days to live."

"They stuck me in a hospital and I got blood poisoning from the cure, but I am cured. The first thing when I got back to Chicago, April 23, I told Frances about it. Poor kid, she was a doper, too."

In Morals Court as "Girl."

After his last grilling, Freddy, the man with the debutante snob, admitted he had been a delinquent "girl" up in the Morals court several times on charges of having conducted a "transient" rooming house. "Her" admission recalled the debauched apartment double flat, presided over by the gracious "madame" who always wore décolleté evening dress after 6 o'clock, at Erie and La Salle, about eight years ago. Yesterday the north side community admitted itself "foiled" to the limit by the "madame," who later removed to 1414 North Clark street.

A later removal to 307 West Schiller street was a comedown, Fred admitted. But, "she" stated, "I took a few transient roomers several times a week. The pay wasn't high; $2 or $3 an evening."

"She" was asked whether "she" had been run out of Syracuse, N. Y., in 1914, where, billed as "May Belmont, comedienne and dancer," "she" had masqueraded as a woman.

"I never was in Syracuse in my life, so that's another damned lie," "she" replied with a good humor.

"As for singing, I never was a real performer. I love to sing, and folks like my voice, a contralto. So I substituted at the Erie, the Athenia, and others on North Clark street. I sang at Riverview and at Forest Park, too. But I have my piano and victrola. I get my cabaret at home, yes, but I ain't been in a cabaret for more than four months."

Asks New Test Before Widow.

Taken out of the room to get a drink of milk, Freddy wished "her" trailing draperies and tossed back over "her" shoulder a mellow, defiant, baritone assertion: "Believe me, I don't know a damned thing about this mess. You help me and I'll help you. We'll go through the dope joints and we'll get the girl who killed Tesmer."

At the door "she" shot back: "That Tesmer woman, she's crazy. Why don't she give me a white man's chance? Let me doll up, shave, wash my eyes, get my rainbow garden of powder and rouge working, and then see if she could recognize me. Not a chance!"

"Never mind, Freddy," they said soothingly. "You'll get your chance, and they discussed plans to replace the skimpy frock with coat, trousers, and vest."

Rum, Russian Boots, Music.

"Freddy's" boots were tracked at night by Chief of Detectives Hughes, Lieut. Hugh McCarthy and Sergt. Cusack. Paint pots, dirty wigs, heaps of filthy underthings, expensive corsets, frayed Russian boots, a recipe for chocolate fudge, and seven cork books furnished most of the equipment.

Inconspicuously mixed, "stylish" bird's eye maple furniture of two decades ago bumped up against decayed wooden boxes full of rubbish. Dirt, dust, whisky bottles and advertisements for the drink and the dope cure cluttered up the corners belched out of the closets, and spilled out from beneath beds. A massive victrola and a player piano with hundreds of rolls made a music room of a whisky den.

In the sideboard drawer, where letters and bills replaced linen and silver, was the army order exempting Frank Carrick from service because of the "dependency of wife, Frances." An insurance policy named "Frances Carrick, wife," as beneficiary.

And the neighborhood finds it hard to believe that the kind hearted cook, the "Mrs. Carrick" who sang beautiful soprano solos, belongs in coat, vest and trousers.

"It'll take me a long time to listen to that racket about her being a man," declared Mrs. Della Thiele, who lives in the cottage in the rear of the Carrick flat.

And it will take even a longer time to convince Mrs. Thiele that her neighbor ever handled a revolver. "Not a chance, I tell you. We'd 'a' known it if she was up to that kinda stuff."

There were only two sinister things about the housewife's "woman," Mrs. Thiele recalled. One was the beard. "But," the woman explained, "I knew she drank a lot, and I thought that when crazy with cheap moon, she had shaved her face. Then she would have had to keep on."

But the laugh—low, baffling, with a leer in its tone—was more bewildering. "That got me," the neighbor confessed.

"And now—would you believe it?—that parrot she wished on me when the cops got her—that has the same laugh! Gosh, I wish she'd come home and get that bird. I'll be cuckoo if I hear that laugh again."

HOW TESMER WAS SLAIN

It was two weeks ago Tuesday shortly before eleven o'clock at night that a slinky figure in a brown dress and poke bonnet eased softly into the shadows of the alley at the rear of the Richard G. Tesmer home at 5335 West 47th avenue.

Up in the comfortable apartment, owned by the well established insurance man, his only daughter, twenty-year-old Clara, dreamed pleasantly of her graduation within a fortnight from Northwestern university.

Down the alley, in their Durant car, drove Mr. and Mrs. Tesmer, returning from a visit to his sister on the south side. Tesmer got out of the car, opened the garage door, and climbed back to the steering wheel.

The slim contour in brown silhouette itself against the dull black of that alley corridor. A feminine voice cut through. "Put up your hands and keep still, we want your money." And with a steady jerk the young miss leveled a revolver toward Mrs. Tesmer.

Frightened, inarticulate, Mrs. Tesmer shrank away from that uncanny, devilish smile that played about the lines of the woman's mouth.

As the girl with the gun grabbed $5.50 from the woman's handbag, the man escort jerked less than $20 out of Tesmer's pocket.

Still smiling a twisted curve that turned the lines of her face into a psychological puzzle, the gunman ordered Mrs. Tesmer to hand over her rings.

"I have only my wedding ring," the woman pleaded. "Let me keep that, and don't shoot," she supplicated the smiling face.

The man, through with Tesmer's unyielding pockets, turned to help his companion. Tesmer made an involuntary urge toward his hysterical wife. And the slim girlish figure, gun still level, flipped onto the running board of the Tesmer car, twirled a half turn, and vanished the trigger of her 38.

The insurance man fell over in a heap, unconscious of his wife's frenzied scream and his daughter's shout from her bedroom window.

Somebody stepped on the gas and the car sped down the alley.

THE TELLTALE SMILE

"Hang the smiling girl bandit, the man killer," the whole city was crying by dawn.

And the authorities had her description, thanks to the distracted widow, hysterically determined to remember the face and trying to forget the eerie smile.

"I'll never forget that smile," she repeated over and over during the last two weeks as police brought suspects before her.

Finally, on a "hot tip," Sergt. William Cusack and his squad from the detective bureau raided the flat at 307 West Schiller street early Tuesday morning. "Mrs. Frances Carrick," kicking, screaming oaths, and shouting boasts, together with "her husband," Frank Carrick, "her" girl friend, Marie Clark, and a visitor, Anthony Kueher, were arrested.

"Mrs. Carrick" didn't have light hair, but a streaked honey bob. No one has been able to discover that "she" ever had a brown dress.

In "her" collection of fifteen hats there is no poke bonnet. "Her" eyes are more gray than blue. And the "girl" with the smile is a man, one who masqueraded for eighteen years in woman's silks.

But the smile that "set wrong" on a woman's face betrayed itself.

So Mrs. Tesmer looked at Fred G. Thompson, still in a blue frock, trailing draperies, and green hat, and said, with a widow's convictions:

"That's the terrible woman who shot my husband."

LAVA TENTACLES REACH FOR MORE TOWNS IN SICILY

King Cheers Victims of Etna's Rain of Fire.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.) (Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.)

LINGUAGLOSSA, Italy, June 20.—(Tribune Radio.)—Mount Etna continued to pour out lava all day today. It is calculated that the volcano has emitted 100,000,000 cubic meters of burning material. The thickness of the lava flow, which has now moved fifteen kilometers into the fertile valley between the towns of Linguaglossa and Castiglione, has been increased to seven meters.

There were no earthquake shocks noticed last night or today and there was no fall of lapilli, only a steady downpour of fine blinding cinders over a radius of six or seven miles. Experts assert that Linguaglossa will be swamped by the lava flow.

The presence of King Victor Emmanuel here today had a splendid effect on the town, the morale of the people being raised. The people of the town, numbering about 15,000, nearly all are peasants with poetic faith in prayer. The archbishop of Catania is here leading the people in prayer.

King Assures Aid.

The natives implored help from the king. When he assured them that aid would be forthcoming, following a benediction from the archbishop, both he and the prelate were greeted with hosannas.

The townspeople, however, put their greatest hope for salvation in Saint Egidius, their patron saint. They brought out a statue of the saint and placed it at one end of the town, facing the approaching wave of fire. Their chanting and prayers were given with such fervor and intensity as would thrill even the most confirmed unbeliever. The statue was covered with the common ornaments worn by the simple peasants. There were earrings, watch chains and many cheap watches—among which were recognized $3 American watches.

Many Have Relatives in Chicago.

Now the anthem "Visti il Santo Melanovra" is heard in a loud voice. Then hundreds in heart rendering and impassioned appeals answered: "O, good and beautiful saint, yes thou wilt save us."

The mayor stated that there are about 3,000 persons from this town now in the United States, many being in Chicago. He mentioned the name of Rosario Ardizzone, who has six sons in Chicago.

The army Red Cross with tents to accommodate 3,000 arrived here today. There are thousands of army trucks and requisitioned automobiles in the vicinity of Linguaglossa ready to transport the inhabitants in case the town is threatened.

"Land of Dreadful Night."

Finally, on June 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The smiling, fruitful, and thickly populated slopes of Mount Etna and the surrounding country, as the correspondent of the Associated Press saw them in the past, have now become, with ghastly suddenness, "the land of dreadful night."

Through the thick darkness, which can almost be felt, flows the crimson of the lava fire flowing from the broken lips of the craters, extending for miles, and gradually growing darker as the molten mass cools and hardens, until cracks and crevices appear on the surface through which can be seen bubbling up the boiling lava beneath.

Sufferers Greet Relief.

The visit of King Victor Emmanuel was the outstanding event of the day; it served to infuse new courage and

U. S. CARE FOR INSANE NEED OF VETS, REPORT

Government provision of hospital care for the insane is the most urgent need of ex-service men today, states a report issued yesterday by the Community Trust company of the survey of disabled veterans made for the Chicago Woman's club.

"Public opinion should be organized to get the government to make suitable provision for the insane, so that they can be cared for in government hospitals instead of in state or contract hospitals," is the first recommendation made.

Other recommendations include the following: Additional work can best be done, or undertaken, not by creating a new organization, but by supplementing what is already in existence; cases of filing claims should be cleared between organizations, to be done in the most economical way, with the largest returns for the men.

FACING THE FACTS

In this series of daily talks I shall endeavor to show facts of vital interest to everyone who owns an automobile. On request we will furnish these particularly interested any articles they have missed.

H. A. HOLDER

No. 12

More facts on distribution

While I think present methods of automobile selling and distribution wrong and a burden to the buyer under today's conditions, they were once rational and effective.

The automobile as a novelty was of public interest, as to appearance. To own one put the buyer in a preferred class in the estimation of his friends and neighbors. In those days, elaborate settings, fine showrooms, personal solicitation and demonstration were necessary and alone started the growth that made today possible.

No one for the first years could get anything like the utility value from an automobile he can today, and today is but the promise of tomorrow in that direction.

Time was needed to develop reliability as to the working of the car itself—to build the roads, to widen its field of action—to create the places to go to and the comfort and pleasure on arrival. Up to very recently crossing the country in an automobile was nearly as much a trip of adventure as in '49. Today it is mostly a question of getting the time to go.

Everything has changed except Selling Cost

Exclusive dealers with but one car and one price range remain. They also were necessary at first. The wonders of automobile growth are two—large production methods and the raising of money to finance such a tremendous investment.

The successful manufacturer so far has been the man who shut his eyes to natural industrial growth as shown by other industrial experience and built for quantity production. Enlarging and expanding again and again.

This required money. More money and still more. The banking and financing facilities of today were not available then. The exclusive distributor and dealer with capital and credit was created and filled the need of finding money. Usual methods of merchandising—usual terms of credit given by manufacturers—usual methods of financing were done away with. The manufacturer shipped his product for cash payments. The distributor raised the money himself to pay on arrival and the financial load was distributed over the whole country instead of the district of production as is usually the case. Further, this dealer used his own credit in carrying extended payments for the purchaser to the advantage of both buyer and seller.

This was valuable and the exclusive monopoly given the distributor and dealer was fair recompense and of public benefit as it made increased use and production possible. In this direction it may still be necessary and valuable to the manufacturer of cheap cars but to the high grade quality car manufacturers whose users can finance their own purchases it is no longer necessary.

Service the unusual sales factor

A further unusual factor entered into automobile selling and that was the keeping of the car operating after it was sold, identified today by the smooth word Service.

As shown in previous talk No. 8 last Sunday this handicap to low cost and universal distribution and selling still remains with the Poppet Valve Manufacturers.

With a design of engine requiring frequent adjustments and attention these manufacturers have no standard fundamental method of operation familiar to all mechanics. Further when troubles are located, special parts for each individual make of engine are required, even though the principle of operation are common to them all.

This means tremendous duplication of special repair shops, specially trained mechanics as to different makes of engines and yet with all of this no assurance that when needed that particular type of tinker will be at hand.

The first step to Lower Cost accomplished—the one thing the Automobile Business needed was an engine that did not need this special frequent service.

We accomplished this in our R&V Knight Six to such an extent that we alone of all the automobile manufacturers in the world, sealed our engine at the factory and guaranteed for two years that such service would either be unnecessary or at our expense.

But even when necessary the standardization of principle of the Knight Engine makes it the same job to work on, one make as another, so that either the mechanic knows at once what to do, or our "ABC" Manual shows him clearly in a few moments.

The need of special service stations is thus entirely done away with as all other parts of the car are standard, well established units known and serviced anywhere.

The step you must take to Lower Cost

You must take the trouble to investigate our car and decide for yourself if you want to buy it. Up to date, most automobiles have been sold to the buyer, not bought by him. In other words the initiative has come from the seller—he deciding he wanted to sell one and picking upon a prospect, exerted individual pressure to get his money.

That is expensive and always will be. Any and every dealer can buy your car and get a trade discount on which he can make money out of the attention he gives you to see you get proper performance.

He cannot, however, spend a lot of time trying to get you interested. You must interest yourself to save your own money and if you do this you will be surprised at how well you will be paid.

If you were to buy a house or anything else comparable in cost with an automobile, you would study, investigate and decide for yourself. We cannot bring individual pressure to bear on you through local dealers, but on request we will advise you the nearest point you can see and study our wonderful car and your local dealer can serve you if you buy.

RYAN'S AILMENT IS INTOLERANCE, PASTORS ASSERT

'So Narrow That His Ears
Rub Together.'

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.
Intolerance and not orthodoxy is the matter with William Jennings Bryan, according to opinions expressed yesterday by Chicago Presbyterian pastors. The comment was occasioned by Mr. Bryan's letter to THE TRIBUNE, which was printed yesterday.

Many of the leading Presbyterian ministers and laymen are in Monmouth, Ill., in attendance on the state convention of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago, which is being held at the same time as the annual meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States.

Dr. William Chalmers Cover, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago, expressed his disapproval of Mr. Bryan's position over the long distance phone. The Rev. C. R. Wheeland, pastor of the Irving Park Presbyterian church, and a commissioner to the Presbyterian general assembly, in which Mr. Bryan was designated for the moderatorship, expressed himself with plainness and vigor.

Mr. Bryan was accused by both ministers of having avoided in his letter the real point of controversy and of having misstated the position of the Presbyterian and other churches as to the definition of orthodoxy.

Faded, Says Dr. Cover.
"Mr. Bryan in his letter," said Dr. Cover, "declares that the views I hold are those which are held by a large majority of the church members of all Christian churches, Protestant and Catholic. The present outburst of criticism was aroused by the action of the Presbyterian general assembly in refusing a pronouncement made in 1910."

"How innocent and naive this all sounds!" Mr. Bryan is ridiculed for repeating what every one believed. How absurd. The damage Mr. Bryan is doing to the church is because he misrepresents orthodoxy and mistakes his interpretations of doctrines for the doctrine themselves.

"I oppose, and the entire Presbyterian church opposes, the materialistic and atheistic doctrine of evolution," said Mr. Bryan. "I support the doctrine of evolution, and I believe that any evolution can be anything except atheistic, and here he seeks to enforce by the law of the state as well as the law of the church his interpretation of evolution."

"Freedom of Books" Move.
"Mr. Bryan's attitude toward religious thought may be seen in his letter on the report submitted by the committee on the visitation of theological seminaries. Mr. Bryan succeeded in getting eliminated the following paragraph: 'Four memoranda very properly call attention to the fact that Presbyterian theological seminaries have not been writing enough books. This is a fact which some can deny. To rectify this position the Presbyterian church must create a more favorable atmosphere for open and honest discussion. In other words, when a man writes a book which more or less breaks with traditional ideas, he must have a reasonable amount of assurance he will not be vilified in the religious press; or, to put it in another way, the church must realize that she is living in an age of science, and must learn to use the scientific method of patient research.'"

"Bryan for 'Static' Thought.
"The seriousness of the situation may not be passed with a gesture when we are assured that young men trained in the modern scientific method of education regard the methods of the seminary as unscientific and the institutions as static in character."

"Mr. Bryan took up his cudgel at this reasonable and proper statement of a fact. He denied that Bible study could be scientific and declared that theological seminaries ought to be static. It is this misrepresentation of what orthodoxy is, and not orthodoxy itself, that brought the opposition to Mr. Bryan at the general assembly and makes him an unsafe leader in religious thought."

"Mr. Bryan," said the Rev. Mr. Wheeland, "makes the Presbyterian church ridiculous in the eyes of this country. He reminds me of Sam Jones' statement that some men are so narrow that a fly could stand on the bridge of their noses and scratch out both their eyes. Mr. Bryan is so narrow that his ears rub together. He would have us believe that everything came by gradual process of development, but under the guidance of God."

"I was one of the commissioners to the Presbyterian general assembly. I voted against Mr. Bryan for the moderatorship."

"Mr. Bryan's statements of doctrine as he gave them to THE TRIBUNE are not the standards of doctrine of the Presbyterian church. Such standards are found in the general confession."

McAfee Points Out Difference.
"The dispute with Mr. Bryan is in the definition of orthodoxy," said Dr. Cleland B. McAfee of McCormick Theological seminary. "Orthodoxy may be conceived of as a line or a field. If it is a field, and a man stands on one corner of the field and insists that every one who does not come to his corner is a heretic, he is intolerant. The action of the Presbyterian general assembly on the five points of doctrine quoted by Mr. Bryan was advisory, not mandatory. A man does not have to leave the Presbyterian church even if he cannot believe the five points."

"A tolerant man is one who believes in his brethren wherever he can and doubts them when he must. An intolerant man is one who doubts his brethren when he can and believes them when he must."

"I read the statement of Mr. Bryan in THE TRIBUNE," said Dr. John Timothy Stone. "I believe the church has heard all it needs of Bryan, Fosdick, evolution, and Darwin, and not enough of Christ. It is time we had a rest."

'EYE WITNESS' TO MOUNT'S BURIAL ADMITS HE LIED

Wanted Way Paid to Chicago, He Says.

Admissions by Benjamin H. Row, a traveling man, that his story of being an eye-witness to the death and burial of Leighton Mount under the Lake street pier in Evanston two years ago was "purely imaginary and untrue" yesterday showed investigation of the former Northwestern university student's death into the background again.

The confession that he had "invented the yarn to get money to return to Chicago" was made by Row to Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Wharton in Clifton, Ariz. Prosecutor Wharton was sent to Arizona by State's Attorney Crowe last Saturday when a telegram from Row stated he knew "all about the Mount mystery" and could identify four persons involved.

Finds Flaws in Story.
When Prosecutor Wharton first listened to Row's story he noticed several discrepancies but kept still and let the traveling man do the talking. Each time the story was told a new change was made.

Row stated he was riding past the pier in Evanston on the night of Sept. 22, 1921, and saw a group of college youths lowering the body of a boy through a hole in the pier. He was given $100 by one of the students, he said, to assure his silence on what he had observed. He also stated that he recognized in five pictures shown him by Prosecutor Wharton the boys who were on the pier at that time.

The statement was taken down by a stenographer. Then, shortly after noon yesterday, Row was handed the statement and asked to sign it. He was informed that if it were not the truth he would be prosecuted for perjury.

Balks at Signing It.
"I don't believe I will sign," Row said, after a few minutes' reflection. "But you say it is the truth. You will go with me back to Chicago and tell the grand jury what you have told here," responded Mr. Wharton.

"Well, men, I guess I might as well admit that I was lying," finally came from Row. "I framed the story to get a free ride back to Chicago. It's all a hoax—all untrue."

With that the man who had caused a flurry in the local state's attorney's office by his telegram walked out of the office where the interview was being held.

Two hours before the man made his admissions State's Attorney Crowe had wired Mr. Wharton to bring Row to Chicago if he deemed it worth while.

JUANITA IS BRIDE OF SUN; NOW HAS DESIGNS ON MOON

Los Angeles, Cal., June 20.—[Special.]—In a sweetly solemn ceremony, Juanita Miller, daughter of Joaquin Miller, "The Poet of the Sierras," was married to the Sun yesterday. She admitted today when she came down from the top of the "palace set" on the Goldwyn lot in Culver City and motored to the Trinity hotel.

For four days and four nights, Juanita had waited, perched up there, waiting for the sun to harmonize with her psychic rhythm. And the sun didn't shine. It was cold and raw—four rare days in June.

"But yesterday," Miss Miller—or would you say Mrs. Sun?—declared this morning, "yesterday my bridegroom came. He was there at noon. He was partly obstructed, but I saw him. He was and as he went from meridian I saw him spell a message; it was 'love.'"

"If I ever marry again," she said, "it will be the moon, but I will have to vibrate in a green cycle before that wedding is possible."

She was asked if such a marriage might not be considered bigamous. She did not answer.

PORTABLE BATHS FOR CHILDREN O. K. BY DEVER

Portable shower baths for children in congested districts were ordered yesterday by the city health department, by workmen detailed by Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague.

Aldermen have been requested to furnish suitable locations for the establishment of the baths to Commissioner Sprague, who declared that should no appropriation to finance their installation be forthcoming, he would pay for the baths himself. Firemen will be assigned to operate the "sprinklers" in each district.

"It is a real and humane idea," said Mayor Dever. "Such baths will be a real blessing to children in crowded sections. They should have been installed long ago, and I want them made and put in operation at the earliest possible moment."

Two hours before the man made his admissions State's Attorney Crowe had wired Mr. Wharton to bring Row to Chicago if he deemed it worth while.

FROZEN ASSETS SEND BROKERAGE HOUSE TO WALL

Claim Solvency; N. Y.
Stocks Hit Toboggan.

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Zimmermann & Forshey, bankers and brokers, forty-six years a member of the New York stock exchange, suspended today with assets of $3,000,000 and liabilities of $7,500,000. Part of the assets were in holdings which could not be readily turned into cash, and this precipitated the announcement of failure and the filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy.

The collapse was an echo of the failure of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, also large dealers in German and foreign securities, which went into the hands of a receiver Saturday with listed liabilities of about $12,000,000 and assets which eventually may reach $16,000,000.

May Show Solvency.
In an official statement Zimmermann & Forshey attributed their embarrassment to "persistent rumors affecting the credit of the firm," emanating from an unknown source. These reports led to wholesale withdrawals and transfers of accounts on Monday. Unable to meet the growing demands, the firm found itself forced to halt operations.

Members of Zimmermann & Forshey were confident, however, the audit by Gordon C. Auchincloss, appointed receiver, would establish solvency.

In addition to the unfavorable rumors, Leopold Zimmermann, founder of the firm, said failure of the alien property custodian to return $1,500,000 taken over during the war contributed toward putting the firm in a tight corner.

Mr. Zimmermann termed the failure of the Washington authorities to adjust the seizure "an outrage."

Stocks Hit Toboggan.
The failure had a lively reaction on the stock exchange, causing the heaviest selling since May 22. Extreme declines of from 1 to 8 points or more were numerous as stocks were dumped in all directions and prices appeared to melt away. Sharp declines also featured the bond market, as bonds which held collateral on Zimmermann & Forshey loans disposed of the securities.

Taking note of the second exchange failure in four days, Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the New York stock exchange, disclosed that the business conduct committee of the institution had been cognizant of the Zimmermann firm's condition as soon as withdrawals from its banking department assumed large proportions on Monday.

Mr. Cromwell, who had issued a statement deploring unfounded rumors in the street, said a committee of the exchange had interviewed members of the Zimmermann & Forshey concern before his statement was made public and was convinced that the concern would be able to pull through.

Appeal to J. P. Morgan.
Announcement of the suspension of the long established firm was made from the rostrum of the stock exchange at 12:45 o'clock. Up to 11 o'clock it seemed as if funds would be available to Zimmermann & Forshey to weather the storm. An appeal was made to J. P. Morgan & Co. to step in, but things moved fast, and before the firm could put its efforts before the great banking house events had spelled out failure.

The stock exchange announcement came thirty minutes before the petition in bankruptcy, listing negligible sums, was entered in court, and the exchange moved on a letter addressed to it by the partners in the suspended firm. The motive was not clear.

"We regret that we are forced to

RESPONSIBILITY FOR GOODS PUT ON CHECKROOMS

Placing full responsibility for checked articles upon hotels, theaters, and clubs which maintain check rooms, the Appellate court yesterday affirmed a judgment of $1,000 in favor of Miss Mona E. Dunne, 737 Garden terrace, daughter of former Gov. Edward F. Dunne.

Miss Dunne asserted she had checked a $1,000 squirrel fur coat, a vanity case, and other articles, at the club when she attended a New Year's eve party there in 1920, and that when she returned to claim the coat it was missing, and was never recovered.

"When the club invites checking of apparel, it assumes full responsibility," the court's opinion stated. "It must either return the apparel or its value."

announce our inability to meet our current obligations this morning. The unfortunate situation is not due to any insolvent condition, but on the contrary, we are absolutely solvent.

Condition Is Temporary.

"Our present condition is only temporary and was brought about by the unexpected withdrawal of deposits caused by the recent failure of a banking house in a line similar to our own, and that some of our assets are not immediately liquid for current use, among which are claims against German and Austrian banks whose funds are now with the alien property custodian, exceeding $1,500,000 in amount."

After he had been in conference with the partners for about half an hour Receiver Auchincloss issued a statement in which he said:

"At the present time I have no information respecting the state of affairs of this firm except what has been told me by the partners. They state that they borrowed about $5,000,000 from banks amply secured by collateral."

Says Loans Are Assets.

"From the standpoint of a broker's failure such loans should not be treated as liabilities, but the surplus proceeds thereof as assets. On such a basis, the partners inform me, their liabilities will be slightly more than $2,000,000 and their assets in excess of $1,000,000, which includes the slow assets stated in the announcement made upon the stock exchange floor at the time of suspension."

AGED COCA COLA
KING MARRIED TO

(Picture on back page.)
Atlanta, Ga., June 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Ana G. Candler Sr. tonight were aboard a train carrying them to Washington, where the 73 year old Atlanta capitalist and his bride of 35 will spend a short honeymoon. The new Mrs. Candler until her marriage to the Coca Cola company founder here at 11 o'clock today was Mrs. May Little Ragin, who for more than two years was a public stenographer.

Mrs. Ragin two and a half years ago, when her husband died, became a stenographer, with offices in the Candler building.

Interest in the wedding is increased by the fact that the $500,000 breach of promise suit filed against Mr. Candler by Mrs. Onesima de Bouchel, a prominent society woman of New Orleans, still is pending in the local courts.

STATE DRY LAW REPEAL URGED IN COUNCIL VOTE

Farwell's Anti-Wet Plea
Gets Scant Heed.

Commendation for Gov. Al Smith of New York and rebuff for Arthur Burroughs Farwell, head of the Chicago Law and Order league, who sought to "spank" the city fathers for lending moral aid to moonshiners, is found in the resolution adopted by the council yesterday asking legislative nullification of the Illinois search and seizure act.

Only eight aldermen refused their approval of the resolution, which was introduced by Ald. John J. Coughlin (18th) after Ald. John H. Lyle (17th), chairman of the judiciary committee, refused to sponsor the plea, which has been considered by his committee for two weeks.

Won't Introduce It.

"I'll never introduce nor vote for a resolution which commends a governor who brazenly urges his people to disregard a federal law," declared Ald. Lyle. "Let Ald. Coughlin present it."

Scant courtesy was accorded a protest filed by Mr. Farwell, who, in a long letter, outlined the fire hazards involved in promiscuous distilling. "In other words," the letter read, "by failing to adopt Ald. McKinlay's amendment that the resolution should not be construed to discourage the strict enforcement of the law, the council refused to stand for the enforcement of the laws of the United States and of the state."

"The communication be accepted and filed," was the motion of Ald. Ross Woodhull, which received a half a dozen seconds.

How They Voted

The vote on the passage of the Coughlin resolution was as follows: Yes—Aldermen Coughlin, Anderson, Woodhull, Cross, Hogan, Kunzmann, McDonough, Byrne, Moran, Ryan, Pick, D. A. Horan, Arvey, Powers, Mendel, Touhy, A. J. Horan, Clark, Adamkiewicz, Pejak, Kaindl, Seif, Sievers, Adamowski, Bowler, Brieske, Nelson and Pontow—28.

Nays—Aldermen Eaton, Meyerling, Govier, Lyle, McKinlay, Mills, Crowe and Albert.

COAXING THE APPETITE

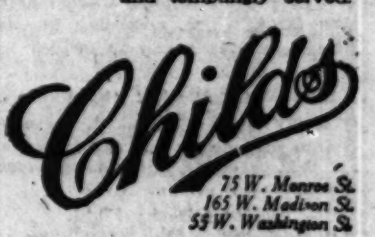

"Hunger is the best sauce," runs the proverb, and this is generally true;

But with people who live a sedentary life the appetite sometimes has to be coaxed.

It is then that aroma and flavor exert their greatest influence.

STOWAWAYS! DE LUXE RIDE CALL 'LEVI' BEST

'Smoothest Afloat'; List of Guests Given.

Board the Steamship Leviathan, June 20.—(By Wireless to The Associated Press.)—The Leviathan "is sure to be the smoothest thing afloat," it was declared tonight by Capt. Herbert Hartley after the big liner had been sailing along on her trial trip to New York waters for more than 24 hours.

Despite a heavy fog that kept the ship on the bridge for eight hours last night, he said the ship was "perfect" and she had been running 30 knots.

Speed has been increased every 10 knots. The ship started out conservatively, 19 knots an hour, but tonight was sailing through the water at the rate of 27 knots.

Asked whether any stowaways were aboard, Capt. Hartley said he figured there were "about 500." This reference to the guests invited by Chairman Albert D. Leakey of the shipping board, brought laughter from the captain's listeners.

Crew Praised by Guests.
Capt. Hartley exchanged greetings with the chief of the Mauretania, but he evaded answering a question as to whether he had challenged her skipper to a speed contest. He smiled at a suggestion that he was after bigger game.

The guests have voiced high praise for the spirit of the officers and crew and their apparent pride in the reconstructed American ship. It was pointed out that one-third of the crew, including stewards, is made up of American-born citizens. Another third is composed of naturalized citizens while the final third possesses first naturalization papers.

RUM INSURANCE O.K., SAYS COURT IN $5,000 CASE

Whisky, wine, and other intoxicating liquors, though unobtainable, have an insurable value, the Appellate court decided yesterday in affirming a lower court decision awarding Simon Hasterlik of the Cooper-Carlton hotel judgment for $5,000 against the New Jersey Fidelity and Plate Glass Insurance company.

Hasterlik, a brother of Charles Hasterlik, the brewer, had a $5,000 stock of liquors insured against theft. Burglars entered his warehouse in August, 1919, and removed the stock. The insurance company refused, according to the findings, to make payment, holding the liquor was an illegal article and had no value.

The supernatural being was pursued and captured by the police. He explained that he was returning from the Four Arts ball, held in Luna park.

CHINESE CIVIL WAR NEAR; URGE FOREIGN ACTION

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
PEKING, June 20.—According to reliable Chinese information, which foretells credit, war upon Tsao Kun and the Chihli party is about to be declared for the retention of Li Yuan Hung in the presidency.

Li Yuan Hung, military governor of Chekiang province, who invited Li Yuan Hung to Shanghai to reform the government with the backing of the Yangtze provinces, is reported to have telegraphed Tsoi-lin, the Manchurian war lord, asking would he join him and Sun Yat Sen in warfare upon Tsao Kun and the Chihli party in behalf of Li Yuan Hung. Chang Tsoi-lin is reported to have replied favorably.

Some form of foreign intervention, through the recommendation of a commission, seems increasingly urgent, with the better class of Chinese favoring such a move on the part of America, Great Britain, Japan and France. A suggestion is made to have Sir John Jordan head the British commission, with Herbert Hoover the American chairman.

HOW CARPENTERS' CHIEF ASSESSED A $1,000 'FINE' TOLD

Testimony that upon payment of $1,000 to a business agent of the carpenters' union, he was allowed to install nonunion fixtures in a drugstore was given yesterday afternoon by T. B. Harned, contractor, during the trial of the Andrews Mill and Lumber company and 67 other defendants, charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, before Federal Judge Cliffe.

Harned named William G. Shardt, one of the defendants, as having taken the money.

"He called it a 'fine,'" said Harned. The sum never was turned over to the union, according to the prosecution. The government probably will rest its case today, after introducing other testimony by which it expects to show graft on the part of business agents of the carpenters' union.

Robert E. Finnegan, Chicago representative of the Palme Lumber company of Oakbrook, Wis., testified that the alleged conspiracy to shut the Chicago market to concerns outside this city virtually had driven his company out, reducing the amount of business transacted by it here from $500,000 to $25,000 a year.

HARDING TESTS PUBLIC PULSE BY TRIP AND TALKS

Chilly Reception at Brief Stop at Cumberland.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Grafton, W. Va., June 20.—(Special.)—President Harding is speeding westward tonight prepared to talk to the American people west of the Mississippi river on vital issues confronting his administration.

The President faces the prospect of two weeks of speaking before settling sail for Alaska confident that he will get an attentive hearing and hopeful that he may win substantial support for domestic and foreign policies which he purposes to discuss.

First of all, he plans to tell his great constituency exactly where he stands today regarding the proposal that the United States participate in the international court. At St. Louis tomorrow night he will ask that the people support him.

To Test Public Sentiment.
He will lay all his cards on the table and abide by the public opinion which finally results when his views and those of the opposition which are certain to trail him have been given consideration.

The President and his official party left Washington on the long journey which will take them to Alaska, the Panama canal, and Porto Rico in good health and spirits.

At the railroad station they were greeted by a small group. There was no demonstration whatever. Mrs. Harding, attired in a neat traveling costume of blue and gray, chatted jovially with friends as she boarded the executive private car. She was a picture of health and appeared to justify the decision of her physician, Dr. Sawyer, that she could stand the long journey.

Throughout the afternoon the trip was uneventful. At Martinsburg, W. Va., a group of half a hundred gathered around the observation platform.

Gets Wine and Beer Admonition.
While the train was standing at the station a citizen on the platform called to newspaper men on the train:

"Tell Mr. Harding he will not be President again unless he gives us light wines and beer."

The President was too far away to hear the admonition.

When the train reached Cumberland for a change of engines the President again appeared on the platform, and Mrs. Harding accompanied him. The President smiled affably and appeared eager to talk, but the group of assembled Marylanders seemed bashful. As the train pulled out the President exchanged a chautauqua farewell with the silent group.

"Must all be Democrats around here," one of the official party remarked as the train sped onward.

County Chiefs Prefer Jobs to Saving $2,000,000, Charge

Failure of the entire county economy program, involving a saving estimated at $2,000,000 a year, will result unless department heads lend their cooperation instead of opposing labor-saving devices, it was declared at the City club yesterday by Commissioner Charles S. Peterson, chairman of the finance committee of the county board, and J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer employed by the county to effect the saving.

"We are frankly at a standstill," Commissioner Peterson, told the club's committee on local government. "Department heads continuously oppose plans that have been recommended by Mr. Jacobs. Unless prompt steps are taken to induce them to adopt the plans, it will soon be too late this year to make changes. Cook county's opportunity to enjoy an economical government will have passed—unheeded."

Talks Plain at Officials.
"I believe you might help to impress on these elected officials of Cook county that the jobs of several thousand men, political job holders who will be ousted under the economy plan, do not amount to anything as compared to the many thousands of votes tendered by a grateful public to an economical public servant, whose record is not belittled by the donation of useless jobs and wasteful extravagance."

"The voters will be keenly disappointed if the economy program fails and will be inclined to place responsibility where it belongs."

Mr. Jacobs, who for several months has been making an exhaustive survey of county expenditures and has recommended constructive changes which would lead to the annual saving estimated at $2,000,000, spoke concerning his work.

Points Out $800,000 Saving.
"I have recommended, and a resolution supporting the recommendation is before the county board, that county employees be required to make a daily record of the time they spend at work," he said. "At present the county spends $8,000,000 each year for salaries and has no record of it. If we could save 10 per cent by keeping a record, and I feel we can, the county would save $800,000 in increased service."

Particularly are changes needed in the work of extending real estate and personal property taxes—and in sending out tax bills. Machines have been perfected, and the county board is willing to furnish them, which automatically extend taxes and give a clear, correct bill. Yet department heads refuse to adopt them.

Urges Use of Machines.
"At present technical legal descriptions, which must be correct, are copied in longhand, by thousands of employees, at least five times in their entirety and three or four times in part. Under our plan machines would be installed, and plates made containing the legal description and the taxpayer's name. These plates could be used any number of times, in all departments, and would result in a saving of many thousands of dollars."

"Photographic copying of records has been adopted in all county courts and we hope to use similar methods in other offices."

"I wish to emphasize that, besides meaning a huge saving to taxpayers, the labor-saving devices will give a surprising improvement in service."

TOWERS SIGNAL 'GO' IN MICH BOUL WITHIN 30 DAYS

South Park Board Acts to End Traffic Jam.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Three announcements bearing on the relief of traffic congestion in the loop district were made yesterday by the south park board.

The first was that installation of a signal tower system in Michigan avenue to give a synchronized traffic movement is to be completed within thirty days. The cable, lack of which has been holding the work back for many weeks, arrived yesterday and is to be strung at once. The concrete piers are all in at the crossings; the conduits have been finished, and the superstructures are said to be all built and ready for fixture.

To string the cable, put in the electrical devices, and finish the job, the engineers say, will take about a month. The board yesterday asked the city for permission to place one signal post at Lake street, which is in the city's jurisdiction, in order to control the whole boulevard from the river to 22d street under the synchronized system.

Foot Subway Contract Signed.
The second announcement was that a contract for a subway for pedestrians at Van Buren street has, at last, been signed by the Illinois Central railroad and the park commission. It is expected to be ready for use in about a year. It will relieve one of the most crowded pedestrian crossings on the boulevard.

It was also announced that contracts have just been let for the steel for the viaduct over the Illinois Central tracks at 33d street, which is to connect South Park boulevard, now being widened, with the outer drive and the Grant park drives. It is expected that this viaduct will be finished a year from next fall.

The signal tower system which the park officials expect will be ready for formal opening Saturday, July 21, if not sooner, is similar to the one in operation in 5th avenue, New York. Under it, traffic is able to move three or four blocks before halting instead of muddling along, stopping every block.

Accepts Offer of Hertz.
More than a year ago, the south park board accepted the offer of John Hertz of the Yellow Cab company to pay for the erection of signal towers, the board to stand the expense if the experiment is successful, otherwise Mr. Hertz to pay the bill for the try-out. With the delayed cable now on the ground, board officials declare quick work will be made of the job. The system will cost between $50,000 and $60,000. Under the contract, Mr. Hertz pays for it, but at the end of two years if the system has proved a success, the board will reimburse him.

The synchronized traffic system is to extend from 22d street north to Randolph street, where the south park domain ends, unless the city hall throws the Lake street crossing into the system.

Controlled by Men in Towers.
There will be three towers. They will be placed at Jackson boulevard, 12th, and 16th streets. In these towers perched atop of posts will be traffic officers. At the other street crossings there will be signal posts with colored lamps to flash "Stop" and "Go" and also the "Get Ready" signal, warning that a change in direction is coming.

Michigan avenue, which is the great distribution artery for passenger automobiles, busses, and taxicabs in the loop area, now carries 60 per cent more traffic than does 5th avenue, New York. The real problem on the avenue lies in a stretch of a half mile or so from Randolph street south.

TURKISH PARLEY AGAIN HEADED FOR SMASHUP

BY VINCENT SHEEHAN.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

LAURANNE, June 20.—The near east peace conference being held here has reached a lull preceding the final storm. That storm, according to informed sources, will break at the end of this week unless the Turks yield on the debt question.

Conversations among the governments of Rome, Paris and London have given the French one distinct advantage—both England and Italy now realize that the Poincaré government is determined to maintain its stand on the Ottoman debt.

Although an ultimatum is now practically out of the question through the lukewarmness of England and Italy on the idea, nevertheless France has gained its point and unless the Turks agree quickly to the French demand for gold payments, which is highly unlikely, the French supported by the other allies intend to put the conference out of its misery.

Without an ultimatum, which would make a renewal of hostilities in Thrace almost inevitable, the allies will pack up and go home, just as Lord Curzon did last February. Saturday afternoon is the time set for the new adjournment of the conference, which can only be stalled off by Turkish accession, according to a high French official. Final instructions will be sent to the allied delegations on Friday night or Saturday morning. The Tribune has been informed.

One immediate result of a conference breakup will be the establishment of a separate peace between Greece and Turkey and the demobilization of the Greek army in Thrace, the allies asserting that there is no danger of a resumption of hostilities, since the Mudania armistice is still effective and will be for years.

The negotiations abandoned here, however, undoubtedly will continue between the chancelleries.

Business for Profit

Business is a hard taskmaster. Given half a chance it turns the souls of men into tempered steel that cuts its way remorselessly through all fine sentiment and other obstacles to profit taking.

It penetrates to the heart of conscience and stills the voice that seeks to guide men in paths worthy of their endowments.

So it is, that big men and little in the business world can lie and cheat and steal and still look backward upon their careers with a sense of complacent (even though fatuous) dignity.

MRS. M'GINNIS ON STAND—DEFENDS HER BOBBED HAIR

Denies Tresses Were Cut to Attract Young Men.

A blonde head of bobbed hair was charged in Judge Jacob Hopkins' court yesterday with being an accessory before the fact to the murder of Mike McGinnis, the so-called "workin' man" whom the state charged was put in "double shifts" while his wife, Anna, and her sister, Myra Ploch, entertained Charley Schade and Francis Nee, the two 18 year old youths who are on trial with the sisters.

The blond bobbed head did not come out in the open when the state made its charge. It kept itself carefully hidden, where it has been all along, under the "transformation" of Mrs. McGinnis, the widow, who was on the stand, leaving it up to Mrs. McGinnis to defend it.

And this Mrs. McGinnis did with a will. Her sea-blue eyes grew warm and scintillating as she declared the bobbed head was not to blame, that Mike was for it and wanted her to have it; and she stopped defending only when the lawyers got into an argument about it.

Mrs. McGinnis' testimony brought out by Attorney Ninian Welch was the fourth rehearsal of the killing which has been placed before the jury. Two statements came from the police, a third from Myra, and yesterday came the widow's.

Mrs. McGinnis said her husband was a habitual drunkard, that he was violent and ill-tempered when drinking, that he beat her and slapped her continually, that she lived for many months with him in constant fear of her life, that once he threw a milk bottle at her cutting her arm severely.

Her testimony was considerably shaken under cross-examination by Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Peden. It was during this ordeal that the bobbed hair took the center of interest. "Isn't it a fact," Prosecutor Peden demanded, "that you had your hair bobbed against your husband's wishes?"

"No," said Mrs. McGinnis. "Mike liked bobbed hair. He asked me to have it done."

"And did you have it bobbed," continued Peden, "so that you would be attractive to younger men than Mike?"

"No, it isn't," said the superlative witness with a show of anger. "That wasn't it at all."

"Isn't it a fact," persisted Peden, "that the transformation you now wear—that you put it on because Mike made you put it on after—"

"I object," Welch shouted, "this line of questioning is irrelevant, puerile, and caty."

Then Peden shouted: "It may be puerile, but it isn't caty. Now, your honor—"

The rest of his remark was lost by the bailiff's rap for order.

Mrs. McGinnis followed a number of sisters and her mother on the stand. All the members of her family testified to McGinnis' drunkenness and his brutality when drunk.

ERWIN BERGDOLL REARRAIGNED AS HE QUILTS PRISON

Kansas City, Mo., June 20.—[By the Associated Press.]—Erwin R. Bergdoll, wealthy Philadelphia draft evader, was arraigned in federal court here late today on a charge of conspiracy to evade the draft and released on $10,000 bond.

He had been released at noon from the United States disciplinary barracks at Leavenworth, Kas., but was rearrested immediately by federal authorities and brought here.

Bergdoll served two years and ten months at the barracks, having been convicted by a court martial on a charge of desertion in time of war.

Erwin Bergdoll said that his brother, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who is said to have fled to Germany to escape trial in the United States as a draft evader, will surrender to authorities in the United States if he is guaranteed a civil trial. Erwin Bergdoll asserted his brother is unwilling to submit to a military trial.

HARDING SELLS STAR'S CONTROL; "HATES TO DO IT"

Washington, D. C., June 20.—President Harding has sold his control of the stock of the Harding Publishing company, publishers of the Marion Star, to Louis H. Brush and Roy D. Moore.

The sale, however, did not constitute a complete severance of Mr. Harding's connection with the newspaper, whose editor he was for so many years. It was announced at the White House that he would retain some stock in the company and would continue to be associated with the Star in an editorial capacity.

The purchasers of the controlling interest in the Star also have bought the Marion Tribune, an afternoon paper, and for the present will continue publication of both. One of them, Mr. Brush, is a resident of Salem, O., where he directs the Salem News, and two newspapers at East Liverpool. In a White House statement, President Harding has let it be known that

MAYOR FAILS TO NAME ECKLUND ON ZONE BOARD

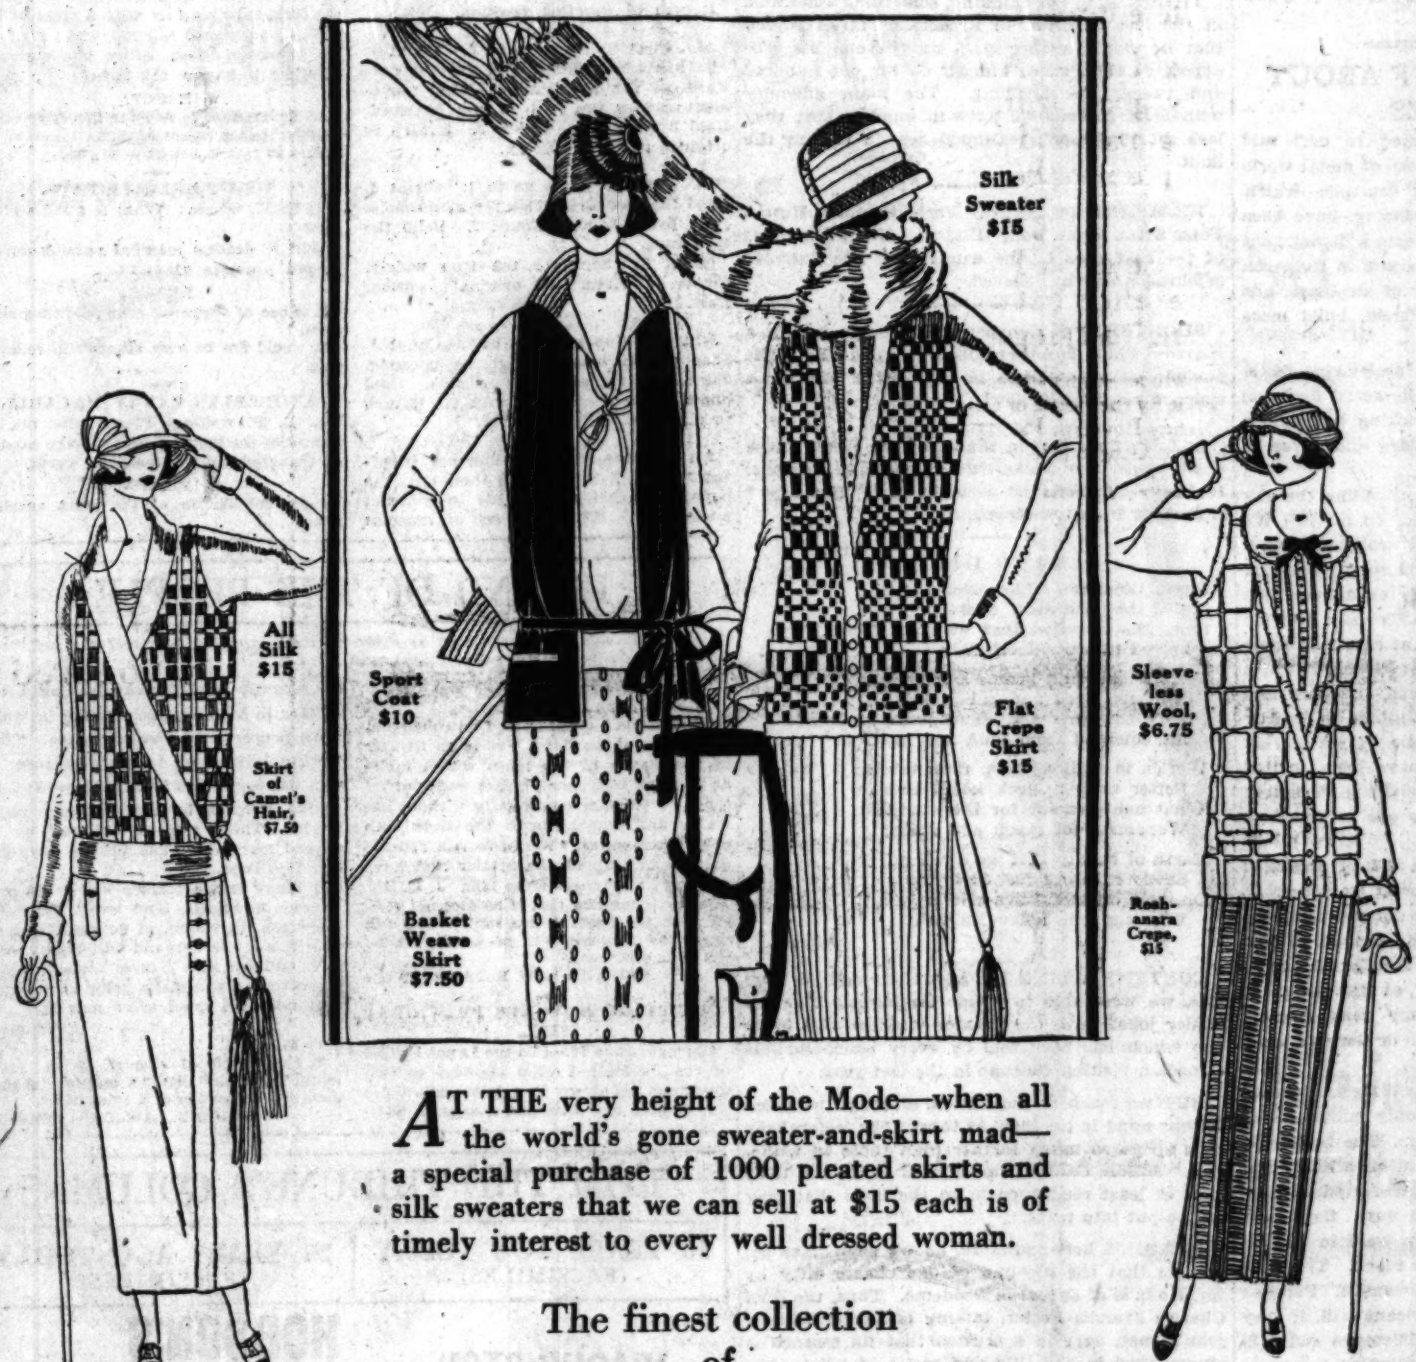

At the last moment yesterday Mayor Dever withdrew the name of Oscar Ecklund, a real estate expert, from his list of appointees to the zoning board of appeals. Four other selections, comprising A. B. Pond, prominent architect, as chairman of the board, and James Young, attorney; James L. Kobylanski, engineer, and Charles Bostrom, present building commissioner, were confirmed by the council.

No explanation of his decision not to submit Ecklund's name was offered by the mayor, who declared the fifth member of the board would probably be named before the next council meeting.

The council also confirmed the appointment of Leo J. Winicki to succeed Dr. William H. Reid as commissioner of public service. Dr. James A. Britton to succeed F. Bowden De Forest as director of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium.

SMALL ARRANGES HEARINGS ON 200 ASSEMBLY BILLS

Legislature Sits June 30 to Receive Message.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.
Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—Gov. Len Small arranged a program of hearings on some of the batch of bills dumped into his desk by the fifty-third general assembly which ended its regular session at 1:10 a. m. today. He has about 200 bills to consider between now and June 30, when the legislature comes back to receive a final message from the governor and write bills to his lauders.

The first hearing will be held tomorrow on the farmers' cooperative marketing bill. Mayor Dever's license tax bill permitting the Chicago city administration to levy annual fees from business concerns is set for hearing before the governor next Monday. House bills 708, 709 and 723, authorizing special school taxes for teachers' pensions, free text books and play grounds will receive hearings Tuesday.

Hears Tenants Wednesday.
On Wednesday the governor will hear the plea of the Chicago Tenants' Protective league for his signature to the anti-eviction laws aimed at "rent law" landlords. Senate bill 387, increasing the salaries of Cook county Superior court judges from $12,000 to $15,000, will be heard Wednesday, also. The Dever license bill passed only after it had been amended to apply to Chicago alone and for a period of three years only. The maximum fee is fixed at $1,000. These amendments were put in by the senate when downstate refused to vote for the bill in its original form, which extended the license privilege to all cities in the state.

Ten Bills Are Signed.
Governor Small signed ten bills today. They were:
Senate bill 139 (Daley)—Creates a commission to work for abolition of the steel trade practice known as "Pittsburgh plus."
Senate bill 458 (Daley)—Authorized the department of public works to sell the old state junkyard near Meigsfield Illinois.
Senate bill 80 (Daley)—Increases the tax levy in domestic cities from one-fifth to two-fifths of a mill for firemen's pensions.
Senate bill 144 (Hicks)—Permits cities to lease bonds for the cities' share of street improvements (street intersections, etc.) without a referendum.
House bill 15 (Roberts)—Prohibits corporations not organized under the "pawners" act from taking the name "Pawners' Savings Bank."
House bill 16 (Roberts)—Extends the general provisions of the corporation act to pawner's societies.
House bill 33 (Rutledge)—Increases billed amount paid by the state from $150 to $100 a year.
House bill 478—Establishes a board of appeal to vary or modify provisions of the zoning law and provides for appeals to the Circuit court from the board's rulings.
House bill 512—Authorizes the state to accept a permanent lease on Camp Grant from the federal government and appropriate $225,000 to equip the camp.
House bill 517 (Wilson)—Requires school boards to establish kindergartens on petition of a majority of parents of children between the ages of 4 and 6 residing in the district and within one mile of the school.

Legislators were straggling home today, tired and worn to a ragged edge by the strenuous work of bringing the session to an end.

SOX TRIP HIM

JOSEPH LEITER.

Whether, as he declares, Joseph Leiter, president of the Leiter stores, asked Peck & Peck, Inc., 6 North Michigan avenue, for a price for sixty pairs of hose, or whether, as the store declares, he gave an order for them, was the question to be decided in the suit brought by the store against Mr. Leiter yesterday for the recovery of the value of the hose. The case was continued until Oct. 3 following the decision of the firm to sue for the value of the hose instead of for the contract price, $20 a pair.

FINED AS DISORDERLY.
Sydney H. Wolf, who claims to be advertising manager of the Detroit News, and Miss Marilyn Stafford, 4028 Cleveland avenue, arrested while walking on Michigan avenue on Tuesday night, were each fined $2 and $3 costs yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct.

58 MILLION GOES TO SMALL TO KEEP HIS WAGON OILED

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—The aggregate appropriations of the Fifty-third general assembly—which adjourned early this morning—are in excess of $320,000,000, according to Edward J. Stankal, chairman of the house committee on appropriations. His figures for the last two years of the Small administration compared with the appropriations during the last two years of the Lowden regime are:

Purpose	Lowden	Small
Salaries & wages	$17,149,477	$22,330,000
Other gov't fund.	$7,946,831	$6,370,000
University of Ill.	$5,000,000	$5,000,000
District school	$13,000,000	$16,000,000
Roads	$9,135,125	$9,000,000
Waterways	$2,000,000	$1,000,000
Revolving funds	$1,000,000	$1,000,000
Soldiers' bonus	$5,000,000	$5,000,000
Ill. & Mich. canal	$100,000	$50,000
Fire prevention	$100,000	$200,000
Interest on bonds	$3,000,000	$3,000,000
Totals	$174,879,819	$220,480,000

Small Controls $38,700,000.
The first two items tell the story. These are payable from the general revenue fund of the state. Small controls these funds. Other items in the list are not controlled by the administration.

For the first two items the governor recommended appropriations of only $51,078,470, although the legislature appropriated $58,700,000.
May Veto Some Items.
Because the legislature appropriated $7,000,000 more than he recommended to be paid from the general revenue fund, it was rumored today that the governor is considering the use of his veto power to cut the appropriations. Many persons have the impression that the state tax rate will be lowered next December for 1924 because the general assembly said that the state shall decrease its tax levy from $15,000,000 to $10,000,000 for each of the next two years. This is only the levy for the general revenue fund. It does not include bonds and interest. The decrease was ordered because the general revenue fund has a surplus of approximately $10,000,000 lying idle in the state treasury. The decrease in rate for taxes will probably be offset by the rate necessary to pay off bonds and interest on them.

RUHR MUST TOIL OR GO TO JAIL, FRENCH DECREE

Will Force Operation of Industries.

DUESSELDORF, June 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The French are preparing to enforce and to requisition a force of German troops to operate the Ruhr valley industries the output of which may be turned to the account of reparations, it was stated here today. A decree to this end is in course of preparation and will be promulgated in a few days.

Jail sentences up to fifteen years will be the penalty for Germans who refuse to work in operating the plants. Sabotage may be punished with death sentences after trial by court martial.

CUT RUHR OUTPUT

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
[Chicago Tribune Special Service.]
Copyright, 1923, By The Chicago Tribune.

BERLIN, June 20.—Thirty thousand tons of coal daily will be the entire coal output from the Ruhr district, one of Europe's greatest coal fields, it was announced today after a conference between the miners and coal barons. How far industrial activities will be reduced by these measures may be realized when a comparison is made with the average output of the preceding year when 124,000 tons a day were mined.

In order to prevent the French from finding coal on the Ruhr docks in the Ruhr district, the miners demanded that all coal digging be stopped. The coal barons insisted that gas plants and households must be provided with coal and so a compromise was reached on a daily output of 30,000 tons.

Act to Stop Starvation.

The food situation in the Ruhr district has become so desperate that the German government was forced today to repeal one of its orders for passive resistance. The new order permits all firms to pay freight rates on goods transported on French operated lines. The French authorities have raised their regulation providing that a ten per cent tax must be paid on all food entering the occupied territory. This order was a compromise in an effort to save the population from starvation.

Ruhr States Its Terms.

ELBERFELD, June 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—Passive resistance would be abandoned in the Ruhr valley on eight conditions, one of the most important of which is indemnification by the French and the Belgians for all products of private industry which they have seized, says a memorandum to the Berlin government reported to have been drafted here by representatives of the employers and employees authorized to act in the matter.

Other stipulations are the removal of the Franco-Belgian railway administration, the return of all persons deported, and the release of those persons imprisoned, the renunciation of all measures of force, the nullification of all restrictive control methods, the restoration of telephone and telegraph service, and indemnification for all wounded and the families of those killed.

Flour from U. S. Stops.

HAMBURG, June 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—Flour imports from the United States have come to a complete stop here as a result of the recent disastrous slump in the market, according to trade circles. Imports in Hamburg, it is said, have lost large sums of money recently because of the failure of buyers to take shipments, final bids running as low as $4.40 below the market prices on 100 kilo sacks.

Germany's food situation is also threatened by a shortage of fish, it was revealed here at a meeting of the Association of German Fish Retailers. Announcement was made that the Reich's entire high seas fishing industry may be idle soon because of labor difficulties.

COUGHLIN ASKS COUNCIL ACTION ON SUBWAY PLAN

Immediate action on pending suggestions for the construction of rapid transit subways and prior consideration of his own plan is demanded of the local transportation committee in a resolution introduced in the council yesterday by Ald. John J. Coughlin of the First ward.

His resolution is accompanied by engineers' estimates that the probable cost of a four track open cut subway would not exceed $2,229,715 per mile. This figure does not include the cost of boring, rolling stock, terminal power equipment or other initial operating expenses.

HURLEY TO HALT DECREEES BASED ON TIME LIMIT

No more annulments, based on a plea of remarriage within a year fol- lowing divorce, will be granted by Judge Timothy D. Hurley, it was announced yesterday.

Other divorce chancellors will act similarly in continuing cases beyond July 1, it is believed, so that children who would be made illegitimate by an annulment of their parents' marriage will be saved from such a stigma.

Judge Hurley said that if the case of Robert Malcom, wealthy manufacturer who seeks to annul his marriage to Mrs. Florence Jessie Malcom, La Grange society leader, and take from his two children their heritage of his name and fortune, were presented before him, he would continue it to some date following July 1.

Judge Walter F. Steffen, the only other judge before whom Malcom's petition could be presented, has indicated his attitude in similar annulment suits, which he has refused to hear.

All other divorce court judges, in both the Circuit and Superior courts, highly commended the bill, which not only repeals the obnoxious clause but is restrictive in that all such marriages contracted within a year after divorce, since the enactment of the law in 1906 are made legal and binding. Thus all children born of such marriages will be protected.

Exceptions are noted in the bill, which holds that in cases where a court decree has been entered annulling the marriage, and persons have remarried, the repealer will not be retroactive.

Thousands of marriages come within the scope of the act, it is believed, and many men and women marrying in the last nineteen years, in violation of the prohibitory act, who have lived as man and wife for years, will automatically become legally married.

Another bill, designed to legitimize children born of these illegal marriages and restore to them their property rights, has been passed and forwarded to the governor for his signature.

Chicago hearings on the charge of the federal department of agriculture that the Armour-Morris merger fosters a monopoly in the packing industry probably will be concluded today, it was announced last night following a day given over to testimony. Sykes of Ida Grove, Ia., president of the Cornbelt Meat Producers' association, who on Tuesday testified that the merger would be "detrimental to live stock marketing facilities and would decrease competition in industry," resumed the stand. He added that the consolidation is against public interest.

INDUSTRIALISTS WRECK PLAN TO STABILIZE MARK

Buy Up All Foreign Values
Offered in Germany.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]
BERLIN, June 20.—The revelation that about $80,000,000 worth of foreign values were thrown into the market in Berlin during the last three months to stabilize the mark caused a sensation here today. To the last cent, this money was bought by industrialists, the Reichstag commission appointed to investigate the collapse of the mark was informed. Half of the vast sum was spent between April 1 and April 20, but even the Reichsbank could not stand the attack on April 18, when a deliberate effort was made to wreck the mark. Of the foreign exchange sold, $40,000,000 went into the hands of Ruhr industry.

Director Wassermann of the Reichsbank told the commission little foreign exchange was purchased by the industrialists until after April 1, but that from then on the demand reached a fantastic figure and it made a failure of the Reichsbank's action inevitable.

Rumor Causes Big Sales.
Stories were being told at that time that the United States favored a Westphalian republic, and this was cited as the reason for industry making such huge purchases, which added impetus to the sliding mark.

It was revealed that speculation by small holders had little to do with the Reichstag's stabilization. In fact, it was the chief reason for the catastrophic dropping of the mark during the last few days was the action of the industrialists in purchasing the foreign values which were offered, no matter at what price. Almost daily since the beginning of April patrons of Rhine-land banks and their Cologne and Berlin affiliations, which purchase for the industrialists, have bought from $900,000 to $1,400,000 worth of foreign exchange. It was openly charged in many quarters that several big steel and iron firms used the Reichsbank credit given them to pay workers in purchases of pounds and dollars.

Communists Make Charges.
A communist deputy, Herr Rollin, declared the firm of Otto Wolff, an associate of Hugo Stinnes, which received credit of 4,000,000,000 paper marks, invested 3,500,000,000 marks in foreign values when they were being sold cheaply by the Reichsbank.

The director of one of the largest banks which deal mainly in foreign exchange and does most of the buying for industrialists, told The Tribune correspondent that the industrialists wished to be absolutely freed from the mark and to have solid funds in dollars and pounds on hand to enable them to carry on no matter what came out of the Ruhr crisis. It was indicated that French separatist propaganda had made great strides in recent weeks and the industrialists in the Rhineland who have showed such a patriotic feeling are now making all preparations for the possibility of the Rhineland being separated from Germany.

This banker declared that foreign markets have little interest to make the mark weaker and that it is only the industrialists in the Rhineland who have brought the mark far below the value which the reichstag is capable of sustaining.

Referring to the objection of those who had opposed his views of modern education, he said:

"The thing to do for boys is to get them thinking about their world—in America. We have not found out yet how to run colleges. We still have trustees. And I am sure that when we have found out how to run colleges we won't have trustees. Trustees do not know what is going on, not because they are not intelligent, but because they are busy doing something else. Hence you have colleges run by

You save money when you use Old Dutch

Because Old Dutch is the most efficient natural cleanser ever known. It is a fine, flaky substance mined from the earth; the busy, fine, flat particles erase dirt—leave a clean, sanitary surface, with the least time and work.

Because it contains no hard, jagged grit. Gritty substances require more scouring, and leave scratches to gather more dirt. Old Dutch won't scratch; it preserves while it cleans.

Because Old Dutch contains no injurious lye, caustic or acid. It's easy on your hands. Results are proof of Old Dutch economy.

Why it pays to make sure they're Keds

A word to the public from the world's largest manufacturer of summer footwear

Millions of people buy Keds every summer. Their astonishing growth in the last decade has changed the footwear habits of the nation.

Yet some people lose money on inferior substitutes simply because they don't realize all that the name Keds means—or how to make sure of getting Keds.

So here, briefly, are the three things everyone should know about these famous summer shoes:

1. Keds are made only by the United States Rubber Company—the largest rubber organization in the world. The name Keds is a registered trademark, owned exclusively by this Company.

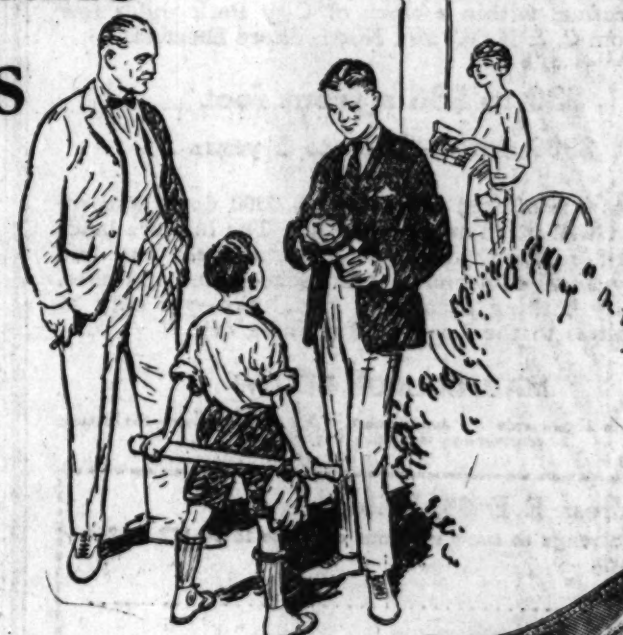

2. Keds are a complete line of canvas rubber-soled shoes for men, women, children. Years of skill and experience have made them unique in looks and wear. Styles for the street, for the home, for sport, for general outdoor use.

3. On every pair of genuine Keds the name Keds appears. Always look for it before you buy.

Keds, of course, vary in price according to type. But no matter what kind of Keds you buy, every pair gives you the highest possible value at the price.

Remember—while there are other shoes that may at first glance look like Keds—no other shoe can give you real Keds value. If the name Keds isn't on the shoes they aren't real Keds.

Mr. Becker also asked if the undersecretary's attention has been called to the fact that some times as many as women and children of all nationalities and colors are placed in one room to sleep; will he make representations to the United States government protesting against this prisonlike treatment of English subjects, and in the event of continuance of this practice will he consider taking measures of retaliation.

Other members also made queries including the Laborite C. D. Hardie of Glasgow, who asked whether steps would not be taken to indicate to the industrial centers like Glasgow that the people should not emigrate.

Mr. McNeill, after declaring retaliation was impossible because few Americans settled in Britain, said there were extraordinary difficulties in dealing with the subject.

Court Helps Make Golf Safe for Workingman

One hazard was removed from golf last night when Judge Lawrence Jacobs in the night court ruled that an employer can't fire an employee simply because he spends some time on the links. It was in the case of Dennis Leamy of the Elm hotel. He sued Finch, Trullitt & Co., woolen dealers of New York, for four months' pay, claiming they fired him for playing golf. He won. "I enjoy a good game of golf myself," Judge Jacobs observed.

You who use Palmolive Soap use it for beauty's sake. Be careful that you get it. There are many soaps made to deceive you. They imitate the shape and color. Names are coined to sound like Palmolive. Numerous soaps—some of them wretched soaps—are put in this guise to mislead you.

Our interests do not matter, but yours do. Your demand is for Palmolive, because of what it does. You are seeking certain proved results. And you are cheated when you get a soap which can't bring those results.

Palmolive Soap has world-wide fame because it aids complexions.

The envied results, seen everywhere, have won millions of people to it. Thus Palmolive became the world's leading toilet soap. Not merely because of olive oil—that's ages old. Not merely because of palm oil—Cleopatra used that. But because our experts found a way to give those oils unique efficiency in soap.

It is Palmolive Soap that has won beauty lovers as no other soap ever did. It is the Palmolive blend—based on 60 years of study—that brings those desired results. It is Palmolive which, by enormous production, gives you a 25-cent quality for 10 cents.

That is what won you—that is what you want. A commonplace soap without those virtues will not suit or serve you. Then be careful. Note the name carefully. Be sure you get the wrapper shown below. Don't let anybody cheat you on a thing that means so much.

Pleads for slower traffic

Every man and woman in this town who drives a car, owes it to humanity to slow down. The traffic is moving at the killing speed of 30, 35 and 40 miles an hour. And we owners and drivers of cars are more or less responsible. Those we do not cripple or kill by our own speed and carelessness, walk in the way of the cars.

YELLOW CAB has exhausted every thought, idea and device in its earnest effort to find a remedy. But YELLOW CAB is helpless. It can't enact laws or regulate the traffic. Being part of the traffic, it must move along with it. It values human life—even one human life—above the traffic, but it can't do anything alone.

The whole traffic has got to slow down if this death harvest is to be checked. Every person who drives a car is a potential killer. Every one of us has a powerful engine of destruction at his command. And only when the people as a whole realize how easy it is to kill, will they come to their senses and stop it.

While automobiles are not wholly to blame—while many people are killed by "jay-walking"—while children run in front of cars while chasing a ball—still the primary cause is speed and disregard for the rights of others. And we think the remedy primarily should come from the automobiles.

Regardless of how these accidents are caused, whether by smart-alec drivers, reckless drivers and mind-wandering drivers—whether by the carelessness of pedestrians or what not—if traffic were slowed down to 20 miles an hour, all over Chicago, at all hours of the day and night, the number of people killed and wounded would be lessened by hundreds. Isn't it worth the effort? You may lose a few seconds, possibly a minute or so, but think of the lives you save.

600 lives destroyed in Chicago last year, 10,000 persons crippled. 295 already dead this year. What are we going to do about it?

WIDOW OF BLISS DENIES LURING $2,000,000 AWAY

Scouts Charge of "Piling Pennies for Show."

Denial by Mrs. Helen Week Bliss of 3530 Lake Park avenue, Chicago, that she had influenced the late Col. Samuel Eugene Bliss, steel magnate, to leave her his $2,000,000 estate, cutting off his relatives, was made in her answer, filed yesterday in Circuit court, to a suit seeking to set aside the will.

The suit, brought by Attorneys Charles S. Deneen and Eugene P. Quirk in behalf of Col. Bliss' brother, Edmund Albert Bliss, and a nephew, Ernest Wines Bliss, charged that Mrs. Bliss, secretary to Bliss for years, had started a campaign as early as 1901, while the first Mrs. Bliss was still living, to win Bliss' affection and confidence and wean him from his relatives.

Denies "Piling Pennies."
That she magnified her thrift, "adding pennies to Bliss' pile to show him that she would always preserve his wealth if he willed it to her," as charged in the bill, is denied in Mrs. Bliss' answer, filed by Attorney Edwin Logan Reeves.

The bill had charged that Mrs. Bliss, whose marriage it is alleged is void by reason of Bliss' alleged insanity at the time, "entrenched herself as the one into whose hands she hoped would fall the vast fortune."

Supporting the charge of the aged millionaire's senility, the bill alleged that he was obsessed with the delusion that he could control his wealth after he died and that Mrs. Bliss had led him to believe the only way such control would be possible would be to leave everything to her.

Asserts Bliss "Was Sane."

Mrs. Bliss in her answer denies every allegation of the long bill, including the one that she had kept Bliss a virtual prisoner in his home until his death at the age of 74 years on Oct. 25, 1921. His will was dated Jan. 12, 1920, twelve days after his marriage to his former secretary. Bliss was active and sane, conducting his business, until he died, the answer avers.

Attorneys for both sides of the controversy are said to be preparing for a long, bitter court battle.

Annoyer of Children
Fined $400 and Costs

Accused of having taken liberties with two children, Frank Parrish was fined $200 and costs yesterday on each charge. He was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Jean White, 5125 Kenmore avenue, and Mrs. Lee Cameron, 5023 Winthrop avenue.

TEMPERATURE TO STICK AROUND 90, FORECASTER SAYS

The temperature in Chicago probably will remain around 90 degrees for the remainder of the week, according to the United States weather bureau's predictions last night. Local showers helped some yesterday, keeping the maximum temperature below 90, and reducing the mortality attributed to heat to three persons. There were many prostrations, however, and the police reported nine persons attended for dog bites.

Walter Koelsch, 41, 8530 Green Bay avenue, died while at work as a machinist at the Illinois Steel company, South Chicago.

David Dropecar, 47, 10535 South Michigan avenue, died at Normal avenue and 121st street.

Frank Kuchurk, 1423 South Union avenue, was overcome by the heat at 46th and State streets last evening and died while being taken to the Chicago hospital.

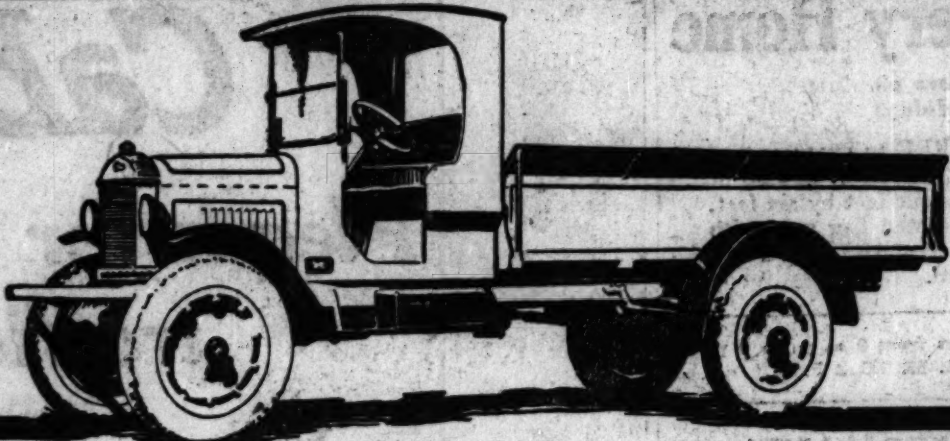

From a maximum of 89.4 degrees the temperature was driven down in the afternoon to 75 at 6 o'clock. "There is no indication of a break in the hot wave," Prof. Henry J. Cox, forecaster, stated, "although considerable temporary relief may be afforded by local thunderstorms."

THREE STORY FALL KILLS MAN.
Anthony Barich died yesterday from injuries received when he fell from the third floor of a building at 8042 Mackinaw avenue.

VETERANS URGE USE OF SPEEDWAY FOR INSANE CASES

Illinois veterans of foreign wars, whose fourth annual encampment opened yesterday at Aurora, Ill., are to call upon the federal government to make the Speedway hospital exclusively an institution for the care of those whose nervous systems were impaired by their services in the world war.

In the opinion of speakers at the meeting, the hospital could accommodate all the neurasthenic soldier cases in the 8th federal district, which comprises Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Indiana. Many of these men now are in state institutions for insane.

What a Noted Jurist Says of a Noted Photo-Production of the Hour"

"MAIN STREET" is a great picture for America in that it will make Americans think long after they have laughed and tingled at the story's unfoldment. It will make them think seriously about the danger of the growing enmity and bitterness between large cities and rural towns, and it will wash away the violent prejudices of each of these groups in the flood of sentiment, romance and mirth that courses through it.

"Its human drama and keen insight into our national life today will show the country that not all city people are 'snobs' and that not all country folks are 'boobs'."

"The best entertainment is that which restores, through its high spirits, the level-headed sanity and good nature of a public. 'Main Street' is of this kind. Its love story entertains and cheers, while its bigger and stronger theme of better understanding of human greatness and human smallness actually instructs us."

"It should bring back an era of good feeling between the great towns and the little towns."

Detailed Want Ad Doubles His Sales

MR. O. was a dealer in used cars and had a fair size shop on South Michigan Avenue. He ran the following ad to sell a Jordan car:

JORDAN-SPORT, 4 PASS.; HAS SEAT covers, lock and heavy tires; will sacrifice for $675. O.K. 6000 S. Michigan, Calumet 3000.

When The Tribune Adtaker called him up to find what results he had obtained from the ad, she was informed that the ad had pulled only a few indifferent replies. The Adtaker suggested to him that he include in his ad more interesting details about the car that was for sale. Mr. O. revised his ad and ran it as follows:

Jordan Sport. This car has been put through our shop and is mechanically perfect. Has a used set of tires, new seat covers, etc. Do not want to sell. An opportunity to see a high class car at an extraordinary price. O.K. 6000 S. Michigan.

When The Tribune Adtaker called Mr. O. again she learned that he had not only sold the Jordan but had sold one of his other cars to the prospects he received from the ad. "The more you tell, the quicker you sell."

A New City is being built LONGVIEW Washington

THE CITY PRACTICAL THAT VISION BUILT

TODAY in the state of Washington, in the broad, beautiful valley where the Cowlitz River empties into the Columbia River—halfway between Portland and the Pacific Ocean—a building project is in full blast—a project that is probably without parallel in the present history of American enterprise.

A city is being built!

It is the new city of Longview, Washington, located in the heart of the abundant resources of the great Pacific Northwest—a city strategic

- in relation to rail and water transportation—where rail and water meet.
- in relation to the almost untouched resources tributary to it.
- in relation to the limitless territory it can serve.
- in relation to the industrial opportunities it presents.
- in relation to the grandeur of its scenic environs, its climate, its healthfulness.

To industries, these alone are significant distinctions worthy of great consideration, but Longview offers more.

Longview—"the city practical"—conceived by business men, designed, from the ground up, by engineers and expert city planners, is profiting by the experience of other cities that have grown without plan.

Longview offers

- ideal industrial sites fronting on the Columbia River, with its ocean-going commerce to all leading ports of the world.

—adequate switching facilities and is served directly by these three transcontinental railroad systems: the Union Pacific, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern.

—a scientific, expertly planned retail business district, residential districts, parks, boulevards, modern sewerage system, pure water and electric power.

Longview was chosen by The Long-Bell Lumber Company—a corporation with assets of 75 million dollars—to be the home of its largest lumber operations. Its mills, when completed, will have an annual capacity of between 400 million and 500 million feet of finished lumber products.

As the first important manufacturing industry in Longview, The Long-Bell Lumber Company alone will employ from 3,000 to 4,000 men when the mills are completed. The population of Longview, based on the Long-Bell operations alone, should be between 15,000 and 20,000. The city plan contemplates a population of 50,000 within ten years.

See Longview for yourself—see a city of steel, brick, concrete and wood, growing out of what, a year ago, was a valley of fertile farms and blooming orchards. See Longview's modern 6-story hotel, its civic center, its construction force of 1,500 men, its great temporary docks. Include Longview in your summer tour of the wonderful Pacific Northwest.

Reached by Columbia River Highway and Pacific Highway.

Henry Ford Talks About His Mother

"Did your mother ever whip you?"

Many interviewers have asked Henry Ford many questions, but probably no one ever asked him that question before. Yet he met it with frank good humor.

The interview took place in the white farmhouse where he was born.

THE HOUSE has long since ceased to be occupied, but the fire is kept always burning. Every detail of every room is precisely as she left it.

And sometimes, in the evening, Ford drives out there with his wife and son and grandchildren. They cook their supper, and visit, and sing old tunes around the parlor organ.

"That's a funny way for such a man to have a good time," many people will say. "Why, that's just the kind of thing that our family does."

Why not? After all, what is there for any family to do except the things that all families do?

When Ford talks about his mother, isn't he talking about my mother, too? When another man speaks frankly of his struggles and hopes and fears, doesn't his experience find an echo in my own?

What does it matter that you have a profession and I have a job which seem to keep us far apart? Living is a universal business, in which we are both at work. That is why both of us buy and read The American Magazine. It speaks the language of this universal occupation—

It is the trade paper of LIFE.

When Hearts Command

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

SYNOPSIS

Mrs. Jean Carney and her daughter, Alice, spend an extravagant vacation on the Italian Riviera after a lifetime of frugal living. There they meet Dr. Philip Ardene, the famous neurologist, and he and Alice become engaged. Jean's husband, Hugo Smarke, who had been confined to a criminal insane asylum for the killing of his partner, is released and comes to live here. Not even Alice knows he is alive, and in order not to upset her daughter's wedding plans Jean and Hugo agree he will represent himself as her brother, John Smarke. Carlo, Jean's widower, the man slain by Hugo, had been a guest at the same hotel. Hugo, on meeting her, reminds her that she owes him $20,000. She agrees to pay him, but leaves the hotel in great agitation. Dr. Ardene recognizes John Smarke as Hugo Smarke, and makes his better judgment decides to marry Alice immediately. They are married at once and go to Europe on their honeymoon.

INSTALLMENT LVIII. HUGO'S PERIL.

Out of consideration for the woman, Gaunt stifled a natural exclamation that rose to his lips. The sight of that madman careening on the ruined wall was enough to inspire highly colored invective.

"What are we going to do?" Jean cried, wringing her hands in helpless anguish.

Through it all Tito kept up his furious barking, interspersed with wails, and then the tethered mules joined in. Carlo came plunging up from the cave where he had buried himself, inquiring what was the matter. Gaunt pointed to the skyline and the dancing silhouette.

"Die mo!" gasped Carlo. "But what are we to do? The signor is mad—"

Jean stepped into the open space in the middle of the big ruin. The moonlight streamed full upon her as she reached out her arms.

"Hugo, Hugo—come down at once! Hugo, do you hear me? Come down, I tell you. You'll fall and be killed if you don't. Hugo, come down! Be careful, dear Hugo, please come down!"

But Hugo paid no more attention to her entreaties than he did to the little breeze that ruffled the ivy.

"I'll have to go up and fetch him," muttered Gaunt grimly.

Jean clutched his sleeve.

Again Carlo exclaimed. "But you would be killed, signor!"

Hugo was strangely silent.

"Tito, come here," Jean commanded. The little dog's clamor was most disconcerting and deflected their attempt to climb Hugo's attention. But Tito was not to be silenced so easily. He was high up above their heads, on the bank of a small stream, and stones at the base of the tower wall. Carlo crawled up to get him. Until that barking ceased it seemed impossible to make Hugo hear.

Carlo threw a stone and a few choice words at Tito. There was a yelp and whine, and the little dog came slithering down, growling on his belly away from Carlo to seek shelter behind Jean's skirts. She slapped, then patted him. "Now, you be quiet." She called again: "Hugo, please come down. You'll fall, it's dangerous up there. Please come down, dear."

This time Hugo heard her, or at least he gave her appeal some consideration. He stopped his curious capering and peered down.

"You come up," he shouted. "It's wonderful up here. I'm having a fine time."

"Come down at once!" bellowed Gaunt.

There was a moment of tense silence. Then Hugo replied: "Shan't. You can't make me, either. I shall do as I please."

"What are we to do?" Jean cried.

From where they stood the height that Hugo had gained seemed inaccessible and fraught with certain danger. The old castle wall rose sheer from the mountain side, and, barring the great heap of stones and masonry which had collected at its base, there was a drop of at least a thousand feet below. There wasn't a ghost of a chance for Hugo, or for anybody who attempted to rescue him, if they struggled and fell outside the ruin, and not much if they fell inside. Those great, jagged stones were everywhere, and inside the drop was thirty or forty feet. One after another they cajoled, threatened, pleaded. Gaunt took off his coat and shoes and began to climb up. Hugo saw him, laughed, and, picking up loose stones from the top of the wall, playfully pelted him.

"I'm captain of the castle now!" Hugo cried gleefully. "I'm holding it with the little green men. Look out for yourself."

The advice was needed. One of the stones caught Gaunt on the forehead and produced a bad cut from which the blood streamed down into his eyes.

"Come back, Hector, he'll kill you!" Jean implored.

Carlo knew another way around, and silently he began to climb the wall from the opposite side, trying to time his approach to coincide with Gaunt's.

Gaunt paused half way up and mopped his blinded eyes. Hugo was now about twenty feet above him.

"Look here, stop this nonsense. What do you mean by it? You've cut your head, now, sit down on that wall and wait quietly until I come for you. Do you hear me?"

Hugo drew in a sharp little hissing breath. A shudder shook his frail body, and he began to cry.

"I didn't mean to hurt you. I'm sorry, Hector. It was only my fun."

"That's all right, old chap. Now, do you think you could creep along toward me and get down the way you came up?"

Hugo's mood had changed with startling suddenness. Perhaps all the little green men, had scampered away and left him quite alone on that giddy height.

"I can't get down!" he wailed. "Oh, I'm so dizzy. I shall fall and be killed. Oh, what shall I do?"

"Sit down and hold on tight," Gaunt said. "Carlo and I will get you down." He began to climb again.

Carlo, younger and more agile, had got to the top by this time from his side, and was working along the slim perilous height toward Hugo, but it was difficult. He had to fling himself across the tower embrasure and crawl up the wall like a ty. How he managed it no one but himself could say.

Hugo was now crying and babbling like a baby. He could not stir hand or foot, he said; he was overcome with mountain sickness. He was going to fall.

"Help, help!" he cried in a feeble, frightened voice.

But Carlo, coming up from behind, startled him, and his mood changed again. He was now mad with terror, and objected to a hand being laid on him.

"Don't touch me!" he yelled. "Don't touch me!"

"Let him alone," Gaunt called out to Carlo. "Now then, old chap, it's perfectly easy. Just you slip along toward me."

"Get away! This is my castle!"

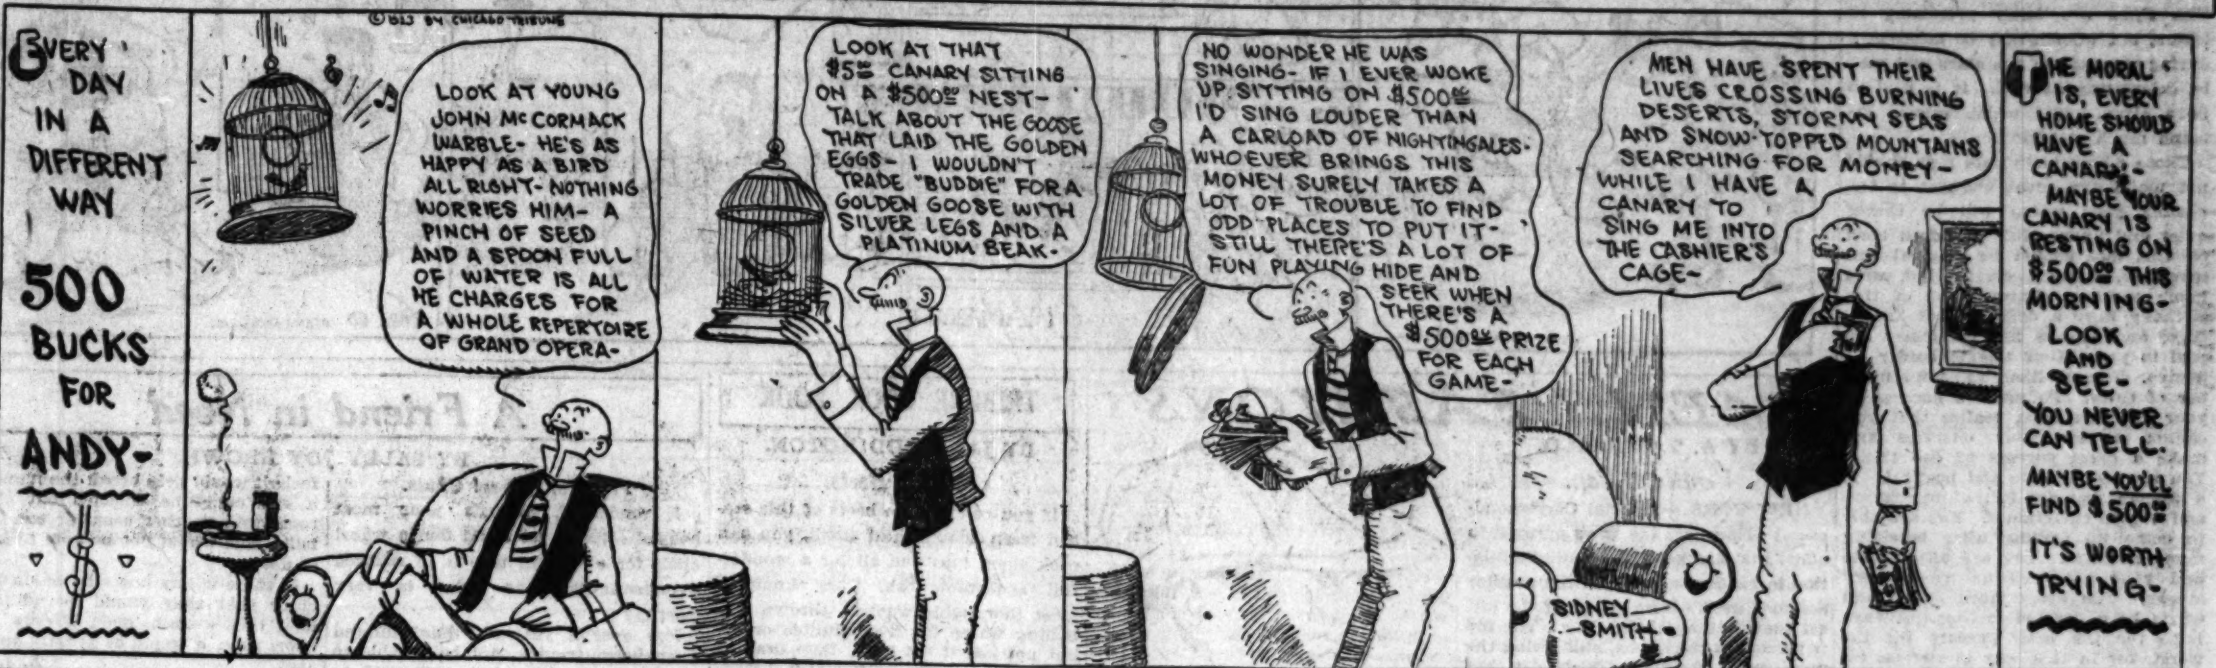

He began to sway backward and forward, his hands pressed to his head. It was a terrible sight for the watcher below. She covered her eyes. This was the end. A prayer rose to her lips—intercession for poor mad Hugo: "O, dear God, don't let him die such a death."

She heard a scuffle and then a rumbling fall of masonry. It was impossible to look, in spite of what there might be to see. Hugo was still swaying on the wall, but Gaunt had reached and caught hold of him. Some of the ruin had fallen under Carlo, and he had all he could do to attend to himself. She could hear his boots scraping for a foothold and his heavy breathing. There were no words now. Hugo was strangely silent. He looked like a sack of meal as Gaunt lifted and hoisted him on to his shoulder. For a moment that silhouette stood out clear and impressive itself for all time on Jean's brain—Gaunt's tall figure, black against the sky, with Hugo's body slung across one shoulder.

Good morning!

Oo, so wonderful cool breeze! Ze cloud sat hide ze sun! (TIT TIT TIT)

Anyhow, come on, let's go to the circus. No? Well, let's go see "Sawdust," which is a circus picture.

KIND: Story of the big top.

QUALITY: Good.

DIRECTOR: Able.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Quite all right.

STORY: Interesting—if it is in you to get a thrill out of pink lemonade and the folks, animals, and smells of the sawdust ring. This is a simple little tale of a pretty trapeze performer who, yearning for a home, resorts to subterfuge to obtain one.

Courtney Ryley Cooper, a clever writer, is responsible for the plot. He's not long on sexy stuff (cleared relief), which accounts for the small amount of "love interest" in the production.

ACTING: All parts capably played, with the small clown done, name unknown, receiving special mention (from this department).

ALPHA: Snappy.

OMEGA: They try to please.

Selah.

CLOSEUPS

Mary Alden says she should worry over a job in the movies. While working on location in "The Eagle's Feather," she received individual and collective lessons in the art of flap-jack flipping over an open fire. Now, she says, no restaurant window is complete without her, and that when the restaurant owners' union awakes to the fact it will be rich producer who will be able to pay her her price.

A gentleman named Fred Caldwell is said to be making a film based on the House of David.

Of course, you haven't forgotten the joy "Editha's Burglar" gave you when you were a kiddie. Well, Baby Peggy is to appear in a screen version of it.

The former Mrs. Rodolf Valentino will be requested to explain to the court next Friday just why she doesn't pay a little bill of $482.35 she is alleged to owe—for dry goods, I believe. Miss Acker is at present appearing in vaudeville.

It is stated that Thomas Ince will endeavor to procure Pauline Lord and her company for a film presentation of "Anna Christie."

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. F. J. Besterfeld, 2884 North Leavitt street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you approve of the Thon amendment to the divorce law permitting remarriage immediately after decrees are granted?

Where Asked.

City hall.

The Answers.

Mrs. Edward Guderman, 4812 Kimbark avenue, homemaker.

—The present law, not permitting remarriage within one year, is a good law if lived up to. But as it is not it places a terrible hardship on children. Any law that is not carried out is a poor law.

William N. Beck, 6242 Newark avenue, secretary. They should make divorce a darned sight harder than they are now. With an easy divorce law in effect, the first little spat leads to thoughts of divorce. Ultimately, this leads to swapping husband for husband and wife for wife.

Miss Effie D. Sigler, 1102 1/2 city hall, moving picture censor.

—I would approve of this new law because the present law does not accomplish the intended results. They marry within a year in spite of the law, and children born of this wedlock have to suffer unnecessarily.

L. T. Claridge, 6157 Champlain avenue, student—Individual cases and the attending making circumstances are so varied that it makes an arbitrary decision extremely difficult. Perhaps it would be best if judges were rendered according to each individual case.

Mrs. Anne Loucks, policewoman, Town Hall station—I wouldn't consider it a good law. I don't believe people should remarry within a year. A year is short enough. That there had been cause for divorce in the first place should be enough to make the second party pause and consider.

Francine Larrimore

May Act Farce Here

They are seeking Miss Francine Larrimore's services at the Playhouse, where they desire her to act soon in a farce comedy called "The Taster," written by Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews. Miss Larrimore wired from the east yesterday that she will be glad to come if the play seems fit, and requested that a copy of the manuscript be sent her forthwith. If her further answer is favorable, the piece will follow "Chains" at the Playhouse three or four weeks hence.

As an alternative to the possible coming of Miss Larrimore, Messrs. Lester Bryant and John Tierk, determined to keep the Playhouse in the limelight as a producing center, are considering a revival of "Mr. Lazarus," the Harvey O'Higgins-Harriet Ford play done some seasons ago by Henry E. Dixey. O. P. Heggie, now appearing in "Chains," is being strongly urged by the authors to take over Dixey's former role, with a view to acting it first in this country and later in England. Heggie is uncertain, however, and speaks of contracts that may require his active elsewhere.

Mrs. Charlotte Learn Garrity, the town's champion understudy, will amplify her varied career next week by joining the cast of "Up the Ladder," at the Central, in the part of the energetic flapper now being played by Miss Ruth Hammond. Few plays have lingered long in Chicago without having Mrs. Garrity, at one time or another, in their casts. S. B.

Eva La Gallienne Signs to Play in 'The Swan'

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Eva La Gallienne, who is signing with the Charles Frohman company to appear in its forthcoming production of Molnar's comedy, "The Swan," David Burton, general stage director for the Frohmans, will arrive from Europe to begin preparations for the event. Miss La Gallienne will return from Europe in July to begin rehearsals.

Arthur Hammerstein, who is now abroad, is on his way to Paris to look over "Ciboulette," the reigning musical success in the French capital. He will purchase the American rights if he likes the production.

Queenie Smith probably didn't sleep a wink last night, after her thrilling experience, "Running Away with a Show" at the Selwyn. Queenie was only a member of a good cast playing "Helen of Troy, N. Y." before she won a dancing contest in the second act. After that she was very like a star.
